RESOLUTION NUMBER 233
CELEBRATING THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF BLACK HISTORY MONTH
COMMEMORATIONS

WHEREAS, this Honorable Board of Aldermen of the City of St. Louis has been made aware that 2026 marks a century of national commemorations of Black History Month; and

WHEREAS, Dr. Carter Godwin Woodson, George Cleveland Hall, William D. Hartgrove, Jesse E. Moorland, Alexander L. Jackson, and James E. Stamps institutionalized the teaching, study, dissemination, and commemoration of Black history when they founded the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History (ASNLH) on September 9, 1915 in Chicago, ILL. It was founded to bring attention to the many historic achievements made by people of African descent that was beginning ignored by mainstream European decent historians thus shrouding the true history of the world and the United Sates in particular; and

WHEREAS, using ASNLH as a platform, Black History Month was founded by historian Dr. Crater G. Woodson in 1926 in Washington, DC, where he lived, and was originally called "Negro History Week." It was created as a time to tell the truth about the contributions of people of African descent generally left out of mainstream literature and to combat the continuous lies propagated about it. February was chosen because of the numerous significant historic events and the birthdays of many Black historic figures that are in this month; and

WHEREAS, according to writings by ASNLH, in February of 1925 Dr. Woodson planned the inaugural week-long observance of Negro History Week to begin, as it did, in February of 1926. The initial observers that were recorded by the association were held in Baltimore, MD, Washington, DC, New York, NY, and Philadelphia, PA. The state education departments of North Carolina, Delaware, and West Virginia also participated in the inaugural event. The celebration was highly publicized and supported by Black newspapers across the country, encouraging widespread, local observances. The historical accounts state that the first observances were a great and overwhelming success causing the observances to continue each year and to grow worldwide; and

WHEREAS, according to ASNLH people of African descent in the United States, seeing themselves as a part of the global Afrikan diaspora, have viewed their role in history as critical to their own development and that of the world. Revealing their connection to the diaspora, Black History Month also commemorated various African diaspora events including the Haitian Revolution, the end of the worldwide slave trade of African people, the end of slavery in Jamaica and end of the European colonization of Africa; and

WHEREAS, as envisioned by Dr. Woodson, Black History Month grew out of the tradition of other Black Historic observances including the American emancipation with Watch Night events, Jubilee Day, and Juneteenth celebrations. The observance also feted the lives of individuals who fought against slavery, for Black Liberation and Self-Determination. The African America scholar Arthur A. Schomburg captured the motivation of Black people to dig up their own history and present it to the world in the following quote: "The American Negro must remake his past in order to make his future."; and

WHEREAS, in the 1970s, a part of the Black Power and African Conscious Movements lead by the youth of that era, Negro History Week was changed to Black History Month and was extended to include all of February; and

WHERAS, Dr. Woodson was born December 19, 1875 in New Canton, Virginia. His mother Anne Eliza Riddle-Woodson and his father James Henry Woodson had been held in bondage as a part of the United States sanctioned slavery system. His father worked with the Union soldiers to end slavery. Unable to attend school because of having to work on the family farm for survival, Dr. Woodson did not enter school until the age of twenty. He finished primary and secondary education in record time and later earned college degrees including a doctorate degree in history from Harvard University. He was the second African American, after WEB DuBois, to earn a PHD from Harvard. He later taught history at Howard University; and

WHEREAS, an avid supporter of knowing the truth about Black History Dr. Woodson often times came into conflict with white professors. He was undaunted but was further inspired to continue the course: and

WHEREAS, on February 10, 1976 during the United States Bicentennial, President Gerald R. Ford became the first president to issue a message recognizing Black History Month. Then in 1986, Congress passed Public Law 99-244 designating February as Black History Month; and

WHEREAS, each year ASALH, which has continuously operated since its founding in 1915, has created themes for each annual commemoration with the theme for 2026 being “A Century of Black History Commemoration”; and

WHEREAS, on February 7, 2014 the St. Louis African American Aldermanic Caucus, with the main sponsor being Alderman Samuel Moore of the 4th Ward, introduced and got passed Resolution Number 223 Committee Substitute directing the City to annually raise the Red, Black and Green flag on the outside City flag pole throughout month of February in honor of Black History Month thus making St. Louis the first US City to do this; and

WHEREAS, the St. Louis African American community has observed Black History month since its inception that has now grown to include larger portions of the City.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED by this Honorable Board of Aldermen of the City of St. Louis that we pause in our deliberations to recognize the 100th Anniversary of Black History Month and applaud the various groups, organizations families, individuals, agencies and institutions that observe and/or hold Black History Month activities. We further direct the Clerk of this Board to prepare a formal copy of this Resolution to the end that it may be presented to those deemed appropriate by its Sponsor.
